Dear Mr. Dulles:

I enclose my copy of a talk given by General Donovan for The Committee on the Present Danger on "Unconventional Defense" nearly eight years ago.

If you are able to accept our invitation to speak at a special meeting of our National Security Policy Seminar early in 1959, this speech may provide a suggestion for your subject. Could you, for example, briefly review the events of the last eight years and give us a new estimate of our requirements to cope with "Unconventional Defense?"

We can offer you the sum of $500.00 as an honorarium and for traveling expenses.

I hope you will call me at AXminster 9-3148, Ext. 217, if you have any questions.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mr. Dulles:

I greatly enjoyed my recent conversation with you and I have been thinking ever since about ways of bringing to our Seminar young men of promise for periods of study and research.

The enclosed brochure explains some of our Scholarship and Fellowship opportunities. We can, in addition, provide for several research assistants and research associates. To complete our plans, we would like to have applications submitted by 15 February 1959.

Bob Amory was here last year and gave us a most stimulating presentation. I am wondering whether you can find time to speak to our group and some others early in 1959. We can arrange a date at your convenience if the idea appeals to you.

Yours sincerely,

H. F. Harding
